THE FALLING SNOW FFORDS AMUSEMENT FOR THE

FORTUNE FOR A SLEIGH IS THE CRY

or Pugh Fears the Passage of the Fore Bill-Nominating Morrison for President.
Mrs. Huston May Visit White House.

Washington, December 26. — [Special.] Nearly a foot of snow covers the ground here and the sleighing is splendid. Thousands of sleighs are chasing up and down the streets, t that of the Russian minister, with three ses abreast and with innumerable bells and lumes, attracted the most attention. Officials are vie with each other as to who can drive handsomest sleigh, consequently many of m are magnificent, but the ordinary individual must do his sleighing on a cab or a eet car, as the Washington liverymen refirse to allow one to drive around the square with the veriest plug of a horse and the more ouplace sleigh for less than the value of Senator Pugh is Fearful. Senator Pugh, of Alabama, is quoted in an atternoon paper as saying that he believes the republican senators will adopt the gag rule, and that that means the passage of the force II. He likewise believes the bill will get ough the house. This might be, but right

Morrison for President. ressman Sayers, of Texas, said today all stuff to say fifteen or sixteen mouths before a nominating convention is called, that any man has a sure thing of the momination. William B. Morrison, of Illiuis, the author of the first tariff reform bill in congress, he thinks, is the best man the democrats could nominate. He believes Mor-rison can carry all the states Cleveland carried in '84, together with Illinois, Wisconsin and

Mrs. Huston May Come In. Treasurer Huston has reconsidered his resignation and will retain his position. Mr. Huston is from Indianapolis, and wields a political influence in Indiana second to none. He and fluence in Indiana second to none. He and Mrs. Huston were treated so shabbily at the white house that he became so disgusted that he determined to get out and go back to Indiana to manipulate that state for some other man in the next convention. Harrison, fearing Huston's influence, has succeeded in patching the breach by having Mrs. Harrison throw open the white house to the Indianan's wife, Mrs. Huston is now appeased and Mr. Huston will swing in for two years yet. The Course of Legislation.

The house met and adjourned until Tuesday, today. The senate will meet tomorrow and nediately adjourn until Monday. But there will be no quorum in either house next week, and no business can be transacted. The force bill debate, however, will commence again in a dry debate to an empty senate and empty galleries. Hoar's idea is to have all the democrats conclude their speeches, but Senator Morgan is to be held for the last. He has been coming in occasionalion amendments and outside questians to con same time, but when his turn comes to speak he will be ready, and good for at least fifteen days, and if necessary, he can hold on for a month or forty days. Nothing of a sensational nature is expected before about the 6th of January. Then perhaps Hoar and Aldrich will attempt to put through the gag rule resolution Cleveland's Latest Speech. Mr. Cleveland's speech at the Tariff Reform club, in New York on Tuesday night, has been the subject of much comment here party of more than a dozen democratic congressmen, representing the states of Indiana, Texas, Georgia, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Illinois and other states, were discussing it in the house today, and not one, although all were once strong Cieveland men, failed to were once strong Cleveland men, failed to criticise it severely. It was practically an assertion, they agreed, that he alone was responsible for the tariff reform sentiment of the country. It was all Cleveland, they said. He has done everything; he was the democratic party; it was he that caused the recent landslide; it was all his message, and of course the financial contributed settlement. question had nothing to do with it, for he mentioned nothing about that. It was like wise agreed that however much Cleveland himself, and however much he attempted to make the tariff the great issue, the democratic party would cut its own throat to nominate him. They must not only nom-inate a man sound on the tariff, but one sound on the money question. Free coinage, more money and tariff reform it was agreed would be the platform of the democracy in the next

THE SENATORS' CLERKS.

, Making Them Annual Employes.

Washington, December 26.—There is an interesting little fight going on between the senate and house over the urgent deficiency appropriation bill (made up principally of appropriations for the government printing office), and unless the deadlock between the two hodies is broken their man be convented of an bodies is broken there may be somewhat of an interruption of the work of the government printing office. The senate added to the bill a provision for the payment of the salaries to the clerks to added to the bill a provision for the payment of the salaries to the clerks to senators during the interim between the two sessions of this congress. The effect of this provision would be indirectly to make clerks to senators annual instead of session employes. The house refused concurrence in the senate amendment, and the senate conferees refuse to sign the conference report and permit other items of appropriation in the bill to become law unless the house yields. The fightis really a continuation of the struggle between the two parties begun last session. The senate, by an amendment to the regular annual appropriation bill, made senator's clerks annual employes, but the house refused concurrence and finally carried its point, the amendment being stricken from the bill. In the closing days of the session, however, the senate passed a simple resolution, to which, of course, the assent of the house was not necessary, providing for the payment of senators' clerks during the recess from the senate contingent fund, and it is now sought to increase the fund to the requisite amount by a deficiency appropriation. The house is steadfast in its determination to resist this, and members of its appropriation committee say that such a thing as paying regular salaries from a contingent appropriation committee say that such a thing as paying regular salaries from a contingent appropriation was never contemplated, and to permit it would be for the house to abdicate its power of scrutinizing and providing for the expenditure of public money.

Death of Dr. Robert Little. Union, S. C., December 26.—[Special.]—Dr. Robert Little died here today at the residence of J. H. McKessick, his nephew. He was president of the alliance of this county, and a Draminant politicism. CHRISTMAS IN CONGRESS

Only Seven Senators Put in an Appearan Only Seven Senators Put in an Appearance—
The House Nearly Deserted.

WASHINGTON, December 28.—The holiday season has affected the senate heavily in the matter of attendance, and but seven senators put in an appearance at the north wing of the capitol today. It was understood, when the senate adjourned Wednesday, that its session tomorrow would be purely formal and, in fact, i was ordered only to escape the constitutional inhibition against an adjournment over three days. So nothing can be done until Monday, and then the election bill will be taken up again.

There is to be no cloture, no finances, no anything, for the whole week to create a diversion from the dreary debate on the election bill. A republican senator, a strong champion of the bill, said:

"We will go on talking about the bill next week, and many speeches will be delivered to

"We will go on talking about the bill next week, and many speeches will be delivered to vacant seats and empty galleries. We can't help it, you see, for the proceedings the other night, when Mr. Hoar tried to drive the democrats into a night session, was proof conclusive that we could not muster in force during the holiday season. But I believe that about January 6th we shall have a fighting quorum, and then you may look for a diversion."

THE CLOTURE RESOLUTION.

The senator was asked if a majority could

The senator was asked if a majority could be secured for the cloture resolution. He replied that Mr. Aldrich, who had it in charge had been instructed to canvass the republican side of the senate before putting in the new rule. Mr. Aldrich was a cool-headed, shrewd man, and it was hardly to be presumed that he would enter into as great a struggle as this promised to be without some sort of assurance of sufficient power behind him to win the victors. THE LONELY SERGEANT.

The sergeant could barely secure enough members who were present in the house this morning to constitute a skirmishing squad and if he had succeeded it is doubtful whether his squad would have proven to be a very efficient if he had succeeded it is doubtful whether his squad would have proven to be a very efficient one in either a military or political melee. An air of lassitude hung over the chamber and politics, being tabooed for the nonce, the time was employed in an interchange of holiday greetings in tender inquiries as to how Christmas Day had been spent by each individual member. Here and there, however, a few gentlemen would gather in a group, and in a desultory manner talk over the business now pending in the two houses.

The consensus of opinion, especially on the democratic side, was that the debate on the shipping bill would be prolonged to a much greater extent than had been expected, many representatives on both sides of the house having signified their desire to deliver speeches on that measure. Of course, representatives are in the dark as to the action of the senate on cloture, the inancial measure, and the elections bill. That the first will be adopted is considered doubtful. As to the second, the feeling on the republican side is that no financial bill can pass the house that is not a purely republican measure, one that is agreed upon in party cancus, and one that is not pur through the senate with the aid of democratic votes. That the prospect of the election bill is not very bright—unless the pending debate is brought to a speedy end—is admitted by all, a prospect which is deplored by the republicans and openly rejoiced in by the democrats.

Discovery of a Scheme to Flood the County With Counterfeit Silver Dollars.

PITTSEURG, Pa., December 26.—A gigantic conspiracy to flood the United States with counterfeit silver dollars has been unearched, and to the energy and intelligence of the officials of the first police district of Pittsburg is due the credit. Nineteen persons are already under arrest, and $1,100 in spurious coin is in the hands of the police. The money was brought from a central depot in New York city to Pittsburg by a gang of Italians. The money was all in silver dollars, and United States Detective Sweeney says it is the best counterfeit of the standard silver dollar that was ever made. The coin is perfectly formed in every detail, and its ring is identical with a good coin, the only fault about it being that it is a little light in weight. From the persons arrested here, the information was gained that the money was made in New York and they had been sent here to dispose of it. Similar gangs were sent to other pose of it. Similar gangs were sent to other cities, but the men could not tell which par-ticular cities were being operated on. Not a mold or die of any kind was found in the resilence of the gang arrested here. THE CHIEF DECEIVED HIM. Colonel Summer Has a Talk With Big

WASHINGTON, December 26.-General Schofield has received a telegram from Gen-eral Miles, dated Rapid City, December 24th,

"Colonel Summer reported his command at Big Foot's camp, on Cheyenne river, that Big Foot assurred him that he would do whatever he said, and bring all his people to his (Summer's) camp, but that he deceived him and eluded his combut that he deceived him and eluded his command, going south in light order. This was most unfortunate just at this time, and may turn the scale against the efforts that have been made to avoid an Indian war. Up to this time the prespects looked favorable, and in one week 244 of the worst element have, been removed."

OMAHA, Neb., December 26.—A special from Pine Riage, says one battalion of the Seventh cavalry, with two Hotchkiss guns and a pack train, has just left for Wounded Knee, about thirty miles away. The Indian council in Bad Lands decided in favor of the hostiles returning to the agency. They are now all on their way in. Perhaps fifteen or twenty may slip away, but the authorities feel sure that the Indian war has been cuded, at least they express great satisfaction at the news brought express great satisfaction at the news brought in by couriers who arrived about 2 o'clock.

Death of Judge Simpson. COLUMBIA, S. C., December 27.—Hon.
W. D. Simpson, chief justice of the supreme court of South Carolina, died at his home in this city this morning of heart disease. He was a native of Laurens and about sixty years of age. Judge Simpson was elected lieutenant governor with Governor Hampton. On the restoration of the state government in 1876 to democratic control, he succeeded to the governorship on the election of General 1870 to democratic control, he succeeded to the governorship on the election of General Hampton to the United States senate and before the close of his term as governor, was elected chief justice, Hon. J. C. Sheppard suc-ceeding him as governor. Flags are at half-mast on public buildings.

Each meeting continued until after midnight, the entire time being deuntil after midnight, the entire time being devoted to a discussion of the various phases of the complicated condition of affairs in the state. Clerk Jewett has completed his answer to the petition of the democrats for a mandamus and injunction in connection with the make-up of the roll of the next house of representatives, and it will be filed in the supreme court tomorrow.

Wadley, Ga., December 26.—[Special.]—
There came near being a riot here yesterday between the negroes and whites. A negro was arrested by the marshal and Randall Green, a kind of a leader among the negroes, undertook to release the prisoner, and other negroes came to his assistance when help also came to the marshal. Things began to look pretty bad for awhile, but the arrests were made. No one hurt. Mayor Cheatham imposed fines to the amount of $30 ton the four leaders. Everything is quiet now. O'Connor in Richmond.

RICHMOND, Va., December 26.—T. P. O'Connor visited points of interest in this city today. He called on Bishop Van Deviver and made an address at Cathedral hall this evening, where a reception was belid. He was entertained at supper tonight by Thomas Nelson Page. The governor and mayor of the city were present. Tomorrow he will be dined by Wydam R. Meredieth.

Street Railroads Blocked, Which Caus Much Inconvenience—The Storm in the Mohawk Valley—Some Accidents.

UTICA, N. Y., December 26,-A severe storm is being experienced along the Mohawk valley. The weather is quite cold, the wind very strong and the snow is falling in large quanti-ties. The entire system of over thirty miles of electric street railway in this city is tied up, the cars being stalled on the streets and in some instances off the track. The stoppage of the street railroad causes much incon-venience to business and people begin to think that the electric roads are of little use in the THE PREEZE AT CINCINNATI.

CISCINNATI, December, 26.—The thermometer holds about to the freezing point so that the snow is not melted in the streets save from underground heat. It is estimated that at least seven inches of snow fell. It drifted in many places to the depths of two and three feet. Street car fravel has been impeded, and in case of double trolley electric cars, comin case of double trolley electric cars, completely stopped. The snow interfered with their motors. They had to be taken off all day, although the horse cars traversed the same tracks portions of the day. On the other hand, the single trolley road has experienced no difficulty at all and has not even been delayed. Cable lines kept their tracks clear by running cars all night last night. At Danville, Va., there was a heavy snow storm throughout that section yesterday and today, but the weather is now clear.

At Albany, N. Y., two sections of the roof of the New York Central railway roundhouse, at West Albany, collapsed this afternoon under the weight of snow. Three men were injured.

At Seattle, Washington, a violent wind storm prevailed on Puget sound yesterday.

A heavy sea is again playing havec with the beaches, piers, boardwalks and cottages at the summer resorts along the New Jersey coast. A good deal of danage has been done at Long Branch, Asbury Park, Deal Beach and elsewhere. A big schooner is pounding the piers on Sandy Hook, where she anchored yesterday, expecting to ride out the storm. Her rudder was torn off during the night, and she had to remain anchored, and today her crew was taken off by life-saving crews. The sea is making a clean breach over her.

At Boston, Mass., the northeast snow storm, which began here at 10 o'clock this morning, continued with increasing violence until 7 o'clock this evening, the high wind, which reached the maximum velocity of forty-one miles an hour, driving the light snow in great-clouds and drifting it badly in many places. The street railway companies had difficulty in keeping their cars moying, but by the constant, employment of many snow plows and large gangs of men, they were able to give fair service on the electric lines, and to run the horse cars on the other lines, and to run the horse cars on the other lines with four-horse teams. Narrow Escape of the Miners Working In It.

PITTSBURG, Pa., December 26 .- A special from Scottdale, Pa., says: An explosion took place this morning in the entrance of the shaft of the United Coal and Coke works. It was caused by the ignition of kerosene oil. The report was terrific. One hundred and forty miners were at work at the time, but all made their escape through various openings. their escape through various openings.

Some of the escapes were miraculous. The fire, which is still raging fiercely, destroyed all loose property in the mines, and has already done great damage. Every effort is being made to extinguish the fire. The whole shaft is said to be abiaze, and an immense conflagration of the tion, which would practically ruin the mine is feared. The mine is situated on Sewickly reek, and is pronounced one of the finest in the regions. Manager Lynch, of the Frick Coal Company, who thoroughly understands everything about the mine, is on the scene, directing the work and at a late hour tonight it is thought that the at a face nour tengals it is though that the flames may possibly be subdued, through his excellent engineering. Excitement in the vicinity of the explosion is widespread. Two persons were injured this afternoon by the fall of timber near the burning shaft. Over 300 men will be thrown out of employment.

GIVEN UP AS LOST. A Steamship With Fifty Souls on Board

Baltimore, December 26.—Patterson, Ramsay & Co., agents of the Johnston line at this port, have given up for lost the steamship Thanemore, which left Baltimore, November 26th, for London. She passed out of the capes November 27th, twelve hours ahead of the Atlantic transport liner Maryland, upon which Captain Alex Luckhurst and three men lost their lives, the vessel being forced to put into Philadelphia to make repairs. The Thanemore had a cargo aboard valued at $175,225, and 439 head of cattle. The firms shipping the cattle were insured against total loss. Thirty-four men comprised the officers and crew, and there were also twelve cattlemen on board. The Thanemore has been out one month today. Lost at Sea.

MRS. RIRCHALL ENGAGED.

The Rumor Comes from England that She Will Shortly Be Married.

Will Shortly Be Married.

Montreal, December 26.—A cable dispatch received from Engiand the other day stated that Mrs. Birchall, widow of Rignald Birchall, was engaged to be married to an old college friend of her late husband, who was generally understood to be Arthur Leetham, of Montreal, who was with Birchall to the last moment before he was executed. The dispatch further stated that Mr. Stevenson, Mrs. Birchall's father, had resigned the superintendency of the Northwestern railway, owing to the notoriety caused by the case. Both these statements caused a great deal of surprise and comment, but today Leetham publicly denied the truth of it. He says there is not the slightest foundation for this dispatch.

THE LOSSES BY FIRE. ce on the Baltimore Masonic Ten

Baltimorr, December 25.—Insurance on the Masonic temple aggregated $95,240; on furniture and fittings, $8,000. The old United States courthouse building, now vacant, has been secured as a temporary home for the burned out Masonic bodies. The loss on the building is variously estimated at from $50,000 to $100,000, but a majority seem to think that rebuilding can be done at a cost of about $80,000.

The years leave additional leaves are on 6x.

The very large additional loss was on fix-tures in the shape of remarkably handsome carpets, furniture, and historical relics. The commandery rooms of the Templars in the top story, were entirely destroyed with contents in-volving a loss of $25,000; to which is added in-dividual losses to the Templars, of regalia, uniforms, etc., aggregating $100,000. Grand Secretary Medairy fortunately had a greater portion of the jewels and valuables stored in a safe in his warehouse.

PHOSPHATE WORKS ON FIRE. The Edisto Phosphate Company's Works

CHARLESTON, S. C., December 26.—[Special.]—The extensive fertilizer works of the Edisto Phosphate Company, on the banks of the Cooper river, about three miles north of Charleston, are on fire and have been burning since 4 o'clock p. m. A steam tug has been dispatched to the scene of conflagration. Effects are now being made to borrow a steamer from the city, to be sent up on a special train. It is doubtful, however, if the fire department will lend the engine. The fire is burning fiercely now, and there is very little doubt that the entire plant will be destroyed. The fire is said to have started in the engine room about 4 o'clock. The loss will be over $250,000, but is fully covered by insurance—all placed in companies having agencies here.

A Fire in Rochester—A Woman and Her Three Children Perish. ROCHESTER, N. Y., December 26.-A terrible conflagration becurred this morning, obout 5 o'clock, whereby a woman and three children lost their lives. The victims were Mrs. John Dietrich and three children, six and three years, and eleven months old. Where the fire originated is a mystery. Her husband and one son escaped.

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS. Report of Dunn & Co.-Trade Improved at

NEW YORK, December 26 .- R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Business has pro-gressed as well as could be expected in a week broken by a Christmas holiday and a great snow broken by a Christmas holiday and a great snow storm. The holiday trade was remarkably heavy here and at nearly all other points good, which is by no means evidence that the tightness of the money market springs from any general embar-rassment of business or industry. The volume of payments through the banks continues larger, though but about 3 per cent larger than a year ago. Railroad earnings thus far reported for December also show a gain of about 4 per cent over those of the same weeks last year.

causes which were expected to insure a material decrease. The uncertainty in regard to monetary legislation and its possible effects is still a great obstacle, but even this has a less disturbing influence than it had a week or so ago, as the prospect of unwise action seems the more remote, and the money markets have generally grown easier during the past week, not only at the east, but also at western and southern centers. Reports from other cities disclose no important change in the condition of trade, though at Pittsburg Bessemer from was sold at $16.25, the lowest price for the year, and all pig from is at bottom prices. Manufactured from is in fair demand and rails unchanged. At points further west, an expectation of improvement, after January 1st, is general, though trade is quiet in the wholesale lines, but fully up to last year's market. At other points in the northwest, the monetary situation seems rather better.

Reports from the south also indicate some improvement. Trade at Atlanta improves and cotton is moving more satisfactorily, and at Galveston receipts exceed last year's. New Orleans reports a fair trade, larger receipts of cotton, the crop being there estimated at 7.00,000 bales, and good receipts of sugar and molasses with steady prices. Throughout the south the fictitious prices maintained last summer have caused some embarrassment, being followed by an inevitable decline, as the magnitude of the crop becomes known. But more than 5,000,000 bales have already passed out of the hands of prothe crop becomes known. But more than 5,000,000 bales have already passed out of the hands of producers, mainly at fair prices. It is especially encouraging that thus far there has been so little embarrassment and so few failures among important manufacturing works recently established in that section.

In that section.

In the steel rail lusiness destructive competition seems imminent, the provisional agreement made during the past week in this city having been defeated by the refusal of an eastern mill to been defeated by the remain or an ease of sign.

Woolen manufacturers clearly enjoy a larger demand for most of their products since importations were checked, to professionals, who have chosen to do but little until the new year has begun. It is by all classes believed that the monetary pressure will cease soon after January 1st, at least for a time, and if no disturbing legislation comes, trade may be expected to revive with vigor. It is a good symptom that, instead of increasing toward the end of the year, failures have become less important and less frequent.

Failures for the week number 303. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 262.

NEW YORK, December 26.—Futures opened lower, further declined, quickly rallied and further improved, closing steady at one to five points advance from Wednesday's closing prices. We nad quite a market today notwithstanding the markets were closed and the storm cut us off from communication with the south. The opening was weak and there was a further decline, due it was said, to the issue of notices for delivery on January contracts, and to the freedom with which these notices were thrown upon the market, the latter being ascribed to the relatively high figures at which quotations for low grades of spot cotton were maintained. Subsequently the notices for January delivery were taken up; the crop movement began to show up comparatively small, then came a demand to cover contracts, causing not only a recovery of the early decline, but some further advance, especially for distant months. Spot cotton was dull.

GREENVILLE, Miss., December 26.—[Special.]—At Elizabeth station, twelve miles east of here, John Stmlick and a negro became involved in a difficulty yesterday. The negro fired at Simlick with a shotgun. Simlick returned the fire with a rifle, the ball striking the barrel of the negro's gun causing the shot to scatter, one striking Simlick in the eye, putting it out. The negro then dropped he gun, Simlick keeping up his fire on him, shooting him in the back and shoulder which brought him to the ground. Similick then advanced on him and cut a terrible gash in his throat. His wounds were pronounced fatal at the time, but at last accounts he was still alive.

HOW WILL IT END?

THE CONFERENCE OF IRISH LEAD-

WILL THERE BE A COMPROMISE? Irish Newspapers Are of the Opinion that Parnell Will Gain Nothing by His Trip to Paris-Foreign News.

DUBLIN, December 26 .- The Express accuses Timothy Healy of making untrue statements to put it mildly, about the Kilkenny election. For instance, The Express says that Healy's statement that 400 unionists voted for Scally is untrue.

The newspapers of this city in general concur in expressing the belief that the interviews which are expected to take place shortly in Paris between Parnell, O'Brien, and other Irish leaders, will Parnell, O'Brien, and other Irish leaders, will not result in any compromise agreement which will allow Parnell to retain the leadership. These papers ask what Archbishop Croke would say on the subject; what Gladstone's opinion would be and what views Morley would take of a compromise arrangement. They add that these gentlemen must be consulted before any terms are decided upon between the church leaders and to the continuance of Parnell in power.

THE CONFERENCE IN PARIS.

THE CONFERENCE IN PARIS.

PARIS, December 26.—The Temps announces that after the meeting between Parnell and O'Brien a formal conference of the Irish leaders will be held. Among those who will take part in the deliberations will be McCarthy, Power, Redmond, O'Kelley, Sexton, Kenney and Arthur O'Connor. The aim of the conference will be the reunion of the two sections of the Irish party based on the temporary retirement of Parnell from the leadership.

to this city without having made a previous arrangement with O'Brien for the meeting; also, that O'Brien does not expect to discuss the position with Parnell personally.

MR. SEXTON INTERVIEWED.

BOULOGNE, December 26.—Thomas Sexton in an interview today said he considered Parnell's insulting reference to his colleagues an insuperable barrier to his resumption of the leadership of the Irish party. He was quite certain that had Parnell consulted the party in regard to Morley's alleged offer of place, every man would have rejected indignantly the idea of sacrificing in any degree the independence of the party by an acceptance of the offer. Regarding the effect of the possible passage of the land act, Mr. Sexton said he thought it would render the farmers more independent, but the measure of their success might be a measure of the laborers' discontent. THE RAJAHS AND NOBLES. Meeting of the Great Indian Congress in CALCUTTA, December 26.—[Special]-The national Indian congress was opened in this city today. One thousand delegates were present and there were 5,000 persons in the audience. Among those who attended were Charles Schwann and William Caine, members of the Patists, house of company. Among those who attended were Charles Schwann and William Caine, members of the British house of commens; several rajshs and Mahommedan nobles and a number of high caste native ladies. Advocate Chose, leading attorney of the high court, delivered an address of welcome to the delegates. He described the congress as the inevitable outcome of the generous policy of the British government. Marvanji Mehtai, member of the Bombay legislative council, in his presidential address, made declarations as to the loyalty of the movement and its pacific aims. He said the congress desired to assist the government in the work of social reform. The time had arrived for consultative councils. Although the diverse nationalities of India were not yet ripe for representative institutions, yet the elective principle ought to be adopted in nominations to the Indian council, and he appealed to the viceroy to watch the movement in a spirit of generous sympathy.

The Strikes in Scotland, GLASGOW, December 26.—The railroad strike continues to hold business almost at a standstill and causes inconvenience and annoyance to many thousands. The latter claim that they are in a position to hold out at least six weeks without in any way causing distress to their families or to themselves. Spanish Protection.

Madrid, December 26.—The decree issued yesterday by the minister of finance declaring that Spain must follow the protection movement in America by increasing duties on many imports, is discussed in this city on all sides. There are many who approve of the step taken by the government, but there are others who do not look upon the move with favor. Following are two examples of the severity of the new tariff: The duty on brood mares has been increased from 25 shillings to £5 and 10 shillings, while the duty on wheat flour has been increased from 18 shillings to £5 and 6 shill-

Something for Which Many North Carolinas Ask.

RALEIGH, N. C., December 26.—[Special.]—
The annual convention of county superintendents of public instruction of this state met here today. A resolution was unanimously adopted requesting the legislature to establish regular training schools for male and female teachers. A resolution was also adopted urging in the strongest terms the enactment of a law requiring compulsory attendance on the public schools. The resolution sets forth the fact that the people cannot be educated, and the requirements of the constitution in this particular carried into effect unless the children are compelled to attend school for some period during school age. It is the first movement in North Carolina in the direction of compulsory education, and originating as it does, will have particular strength. There is a determined effort to increase the attendance at the public schools, and also the length of the school terms. The state will be asked to double the state school tax, and also to require counties to set apart first of all the school fund in making their annual appropriations.

Stevens was city treasurer, and closed down on $300 of the city's funds. There was a run on the bank, and the reasons given for the suspension were poor business and slow collections. Stevens was secretary of the republican county committee, and stood high.

It appears that Talcott and Abbott operated in collusion. Their operations were facilitated by the fact that the firm trusted them implicitly, and left blank checks, signed, in the blookkesper's hands for business purposes. These he filled out and cashed, and the money he pocketed and charged to some fictitious expenditure. Talcett is elderly, and had always been thought to be the soul of honor.

CHATTANOGGA, Tenn., December 26.—Late tonight the Hughes Lumber Company, of this city, filed a general assignment to W. H. Ward for the benefit of its creditors. D. W. Ward for the benetit of its creditors. D. W. Hughes, president and general manager of the company, who has made himself personally liable for the debts of the company, also filed an assignment of his property to W. H. Ward. The assignment was made necessary owing to the pressure of claims on which Hughes was endorser. He has had extraordinary demands made on him by reason of the failure of three concerns which he had befriended with his endorsement. Hughes made the assignment, he says, to prevent clamorous creditors from attaching and properties from getting into court and after long and costly litigation to be sacrificed. He expects to secure a settlement with his creditors within thirty days, as he only requests indulgence.

Swelling, Decaying and Bursting in a Young Man's Stomach, Injuring an Intestine.

St. Louis, December 26.—The death today of Herman D. Armour, a bright young man of twenty, was caused by swallowing an orange seed over a year ago. A few days ago the boy, who is a son of Otto D. Armour, a well-known citizen and former member of the school board, was seized with a vomiting spell. Simple remedies were used with good effect, but the boy began to complain of severe pains in the abdomen. Surgeons diagnosed the case as an obstruction of the bowels, and stated that an operation was the only hope of saving the boy's life. The knife was finally resorted to, and it was found that an orange seed, that must have been swallowed over a seed, that must have been swallowed over a year ago, had swollen, then decayed and burst a small intestine. The rent was sewed up, a small intestine. The rent was sewed up, but the boy died today after suffering agony.

They begar to congregate at this place about 10 o'clock that day, expecting Ewing to meet and pay them for their hard labor.

It was whispered that Ewing had gone to the works. This created a sensation. The men dispatched one of their number and when he returned he was told that Ewing had gone to Buford. Then the other creditors began to attach all the tools on the road, and it was soon reported that Ewing had no interest in them, but that they were the individual property of McKelvey. This made the creditors of the firm und and a general attaching began. He owed his house rent, and G. A. Almond about $400, J. M. Sword & Co. $20, A. T. Patterson $20, B. L. Patterson $15, M. S. Cernite $20, the Simboys for work about $100, old man Arnad about $60, each of his day laborers and stone cutters from $20 to $100 and others different amounts.

He literally scooped the whole crowd and men with children dependent on them for support are left with debts unpaid and with nothing to buy the necessaries of life, and they in a strange territory where they are unknown and therefore can't get credit. The man had a good face and was regarded as a gentleman, but he is now looked upon as the verfest type of a scoundrel.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., December 26 .- [Special.] Christmas Day was one of blood in Gaine

Mr. W. J. Kittrell, chief of police, was shot and fatally wounded by John J. (Blue John) Pruitt, colored, while attempting to arrest hi daughter for violating a city ordinance, at about 5 o'clock, and the negro in turn at once paid the penalty of his folly with his own life, as Policeman Henry Lowrey was with Mr. Kittrell at the time, and at once instantly killed the negro. THE CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE

At about 4 o'clock in the afternoon Mr. W. W. Wofford, who lives just across the Richmond and Danville railroad from its depot, was answered by Chief Lowrey, who hastened the depot, and Mr. Wofford informed him that Pruitt's daughter had been very abusive to his children and had threatened violence, and that he desired to make a case against her. The girl was on the street in front of Mr. Wofford's house at the time Mr. Lowrey arrested her, but she flatly refused to accompany him, clinging to the fence. At this time Pruitt, a notorious negro, put in his appearance, with pistol in hand, and wanted to know what was up.

THE CHIEF CALLED FOR. Lowrey saw there was trouble brewing, and remarked that he could get help in making the arrest. He stepped over to the depot and telephoned up town for assistance.

Mr. Kittrell soon responded, and together they renewed the attack. In the meantime John was rushing his daughter down Brandford street, making for the country to avoid arrest. They had gotten about fifty yards from the house where they lived, when Officers Kittrell and Lowrey came up within ten feet of Pruitt, and demanded him to halt, which he answered by an about face, and discharged his pistol at Kittrell.

THE FATAL BULLET. The ball took effect in the right shoulder. Kittrell fell to his knees, and upon his back. Pruitt seeing that Kittrell was helpless, turned in an instant upon Lowrey, and sent bullet after builet at him, but the report that rang out upon the air told the desperate negro that Lowrey's pistol was loaded, and that his aim was unswerving. Each pistol was discharged. and the result was a dead negro lying on the ground, and Lowrey unscathed. THE WOUNDED MAN DIES.

Christmas Day brought a tragedy in negro life to Athens.

'The darkies of the city have a clubroom on Hull street known as Morton's hall and here they were assembled to have a jolly good time. Liquor was flowing pretty freely and they were making the night hideous. Two negroes, Will Barber and George Brown, got to quarrelling over some money that Brown said Barber owed him. They were both drinking, and soon began to curse and abuse each other. Blows followed and the sharp crack of a pistol closed the tragic scene. Brown had shot Barber through the head, and in a few moments the negro was dead. Brown ran off but was captured by Sheriff Wier and placed behind the bars to await his trial.

THE SPIDER'S WARNING.

A narrow prison cell, a wan and haggard inmate, gloom and damp.

A single window only, barely a foot square, heavily barred, and six feet at least from the ground.

Prostrate upon a wretched heap of straw in a corner, was the prisoner; not asleep, but watching intently; and watching what? One-might guess a dozen times and yet not hit upon the truth.

And the prisoner, upon his side upon his And the prisoner, upon his side upon his heap of straw, his chin restring upon his hand, and his elbow fixed upon the floor, watched a large spider's web spun in the corner.

A curious place for a spide to rear his airy castle—a corner of that dark cell where the sunlight never came and fine fat flies were few and far between.

For no crime had the Frenchman suffered, for Dis Jonval was a Frank, born and bred.

He had simply talked of liberty and equal rights to man, within the dominion of the potent stadtholder of Holland.

At first the Frenchman rejoiced that the martyr's fate was his, and when he discovered the spider in the corner of the dungeon he talked to him of liberty and brotherhood. But even the spider fled from the sanguine repub-lican. And as weeks grew into months Dis Jonval grew weary of his confinement and pined for the free air of heaven. The stadt-holder was iron; tears and prapers moved him not a jot. Then, too, the "tricolor" menaced Holland, and the French general, Pichegru, with a large force, was hovering on the fron-tier, like some huge bird of prey preparing for a swoop upon his quarry. nartyr's fate was his, and when he discovered a swoop upon his quarry.

The spider, too, was a constant source of consolation; and from long observations of the habits of his black friend, the Frenchman became quite wise. The spider never appeared during bad weather, and Dis Jonval was able to predict freat at least a week previous to its to predict frost at least a week previous to its coming, simply by watching the spider's move-ments and noting his own feelings, for he had observed that, when the spider kept securely housed, he, the Frenchman, was usually troubled with a bad headache.

And while Dis Jonval was amusing himself with these interesting observations, troublous times came to Holland.

times came to Holland.

Pichegru, with an overwhelming force, advanced suddenly across the border. The statdholder did not attempt to dispute the march of the Frenchman. He simply retired, and when the French army was well in the center of the land, he adopted against the invaders the old-time tactics that years before had baffled Spanish Alva, and had cost a French king's brother, the Duke of Anjou, a splendid army. The word was given, and the French king's brother, the Duke of Anjou, a splendid army. The word was given, and the dykes were cut; a flat conutry, the greater part of it below the level of the sea, Pichegru found in the Holland seas a far greater foe than was the Holland armies. The Dutchland was all a swamp; the Frechman could not advance—could hardly retreat: the fate of Anjou and his gallant army seemed in store for him. He had waited until winter set in before he had given the command for the for for him. He had waited until winter set in before he had given the command for the for-ward movement, for the wily Gaul had antici-pated the tactics of the Holland commander. But the weather had suddenly shifted around, and an almost summer mildness reigned over the land. And affairs were thus on the morn-ing when the prisoner of Utrecht lay at full length upon his pallet and watched for his friend the arder.

"I have little appetite."
"That is bad," the jailer remasked, thoughtfully, "Mynheer should eat and keep his Dis Jonyal made a wry face. "Bah! such food as this is enough to take away the appetite of a well man, let alone a sick man," the Frenchman said.

"That is true, mynlueer," the jailer replied, "the food is coarse, but I will see that you have should find it out."

"The matter is between us two," Dis Jonval rejoined. "I shall say nothing, and I judge that you will not care to speak of it."

"I feel more inclined to do you a kindness, mynheer, because two days ago I thought it might be probable that we should change places, you become the jailer, and I the prisoner."

"How so?" asked the Frenchman in aston-

"How so?" asked the Frenchman in astonishment.

The jailer then related to Dis Jonval what had transpired during the past week. He told of Pichegru's advance, how the French general had threatened the capture of Utrecht, and had only been prevented from "taking the town by the cutting of the dykes and the flooding the country with water.

"You see, mynheer," said the jailer, in conclusion, "your countrymen depended upon hard weather. If a frost had come he surely would have taken the city, but as it is he will soon have to retreat to Belgium."

"Harkye, Betolf," said Dis Jonval, "if I could get a note to Pichegru, he would be sure to procure my release by intercession with the stadtholder, possibly by exchangeing a prisoner for me. Now, will you do me a good turn; give me pen, ink and paper, and afterward smuggle the note through the lines to the French general?"

"I could do that easily enough," the jailer said, thoughtfully. "My brother is turning a pretty penny now by supplying Pichegru with fresh provisions, but—" and he hesitated.

"Do not fear; what possible information can I a poor, helpless privance."

"Do not fear; what possible information can I, a poor, helpless prisoner convey to Pichegru?"

"That is true," the jailer said. "It is a bargain."

Steat was the astonishment of the French general to acceive a note dated from the prison of Utrecht. And what did the note contain?
A simple explanation about the spider, who had not appeared for three days, and the writer's headache. Within a week he predicted a hard frost and prayed Pichegru not to fall back.

The general knew Dis Jonval; he resolved In general knew Dis Jonval; he resolved to wait a week, and then true prophet, O spider! there came the hardest frost that Holland had known for 100 years. The waters were bound with an icy chain. The French advanced, Utrecht fell and Dis Jonval was released. To the spider's warning the prisoner of Utrecht owedhis release.

THE HALL TRIAL.

CHRISTMAS SPENT IN THE JURY ROOM.

The Defense Sets in, with Several Remarks

Court and Counsel. Macon, Ga., December 26. - [Special.]-Christmas in the juryroom.

Such was the fate of twelve men in Mac esterday—the Hall jury.
And what a fate it was?

One that brought forth sympathy from all. But well did they make out. Tin horus, firecrackers and eggnog made the day pass pleas-antly, notwithstanding the circumstances sur-It was an experience most funusual, and an experience that probably that jury does not care to undergo again. To add to the miseries of those men, they were situated just in front of a place where their fellow-citizens were wont to repair to regale themselves.

It was indeed a thing to excite sympathy. Even the sounds that came from those twelve tin horns were doleful in the extreme But they were given an extra fine dinner by Manager Crawford, and the eggnogg wa the very best. Then, too, they could smile at the bevy of pretty girls who thronged the hotel or marched up and down the street.

Yes, they made the best of their position and after all, that jury extracted more or less pleasure out of Christmas Day.

They awoke early this morning, feeling fresh as daisies, which probably cannot be said of a large number of others who were free to come and go as they pleased. When the hour for court to convene arrived they were ready and waiting to again take up the thread of evidence in the great conspiracy trial.

At 10 o'clock they marched into the courtroom as usual, accompanied by the two deputies, who have stuck to them like brothers from the beginning of the trial.

THE DEFENSE BEGINS. Much interest was centered on today's proceedings, from the fact that the defense was to begin the examination of its witnesses.

The courtroom was crowded long before court commenced, and when the case began there was standing room only. Just a few minutes before 10 o'clock the prisoners marched in hitched double. They appeared bright and cheerful, and to day was the first time that smiling was so gen eral among them. Nat Birdsong's Christma dinner had probably brightened them up a bit, and prisoners though they were, with the most serious charge in the annals of crime hanging over them, they appeared to be happy.

After the reading of the minutes Attorney Dessau, for the detense, began a statement of the case. He began by tackling the charge of conspiracy (as set forth) in the indictment ut allusion to the result. Mr. Dessau contended that the testimony or

Mr. Dessau contended that the testimony on which the prosecution solely relied lay in a confession of an accomplice, with an attempt at corroboration by another party who was equally interested in the conviction of one or more of the defendants.

The confession of Leon Burch, he said, would not convict its clients, and the court would so instruct. This confession, he claimed was in every way calculated to benefit the

But be that as it may, the jury would and could not accept his testimony under any circumstances without corroboration that could not be

The prosecution, he said, proposed to corroborate this confession by the testimony of Bohannon and possibly by that of Clemens.

To PROVE GOOD CHARACTER.

Mr. Dessau went at length into the details of the case. He proposed, he said, to prove the good character of the defendants. He also proposed to impeach beyond the question of adoubt the material evidence of fraud by the prosecution. In the last proposition Mr. Dessau laid down, perhaps, the entire line of defense.

defense.

It is evident that they propose to reap all the advantage possible from the former good character of the defendants, and also to reap an added advantage from the alleged bad character of several of the witnesses. After outlining the case began the calling of wit-

The court again called the attention of counsel to the fact that it was not the province of the defense to inquire at such a length into these matters. It fell to the prosecution to conduct the examination in this line.

Mr. Bacon thought it was the privilege of the defense to show in every particular the good character of their clients. He said it was their privilege to bring out every element, of that character. In this case of life and death that privilege was made all the more a privilege to show the priceiess treasure of character. It was one privilege of inestimable value to his clients to be enabled to show every point of their character. He did not simply propose to have that privilege limited every point of their character. He did not simply propose to have that privilege limited to the bare statement that his clients were simply men of good character. It was necessary to find the truth of the evidence to show any degree of that good character. He proposed, he said, to put the character of his clients wholly in issue, and he did not think, if he was allowed to offer the good character of his clients in evidence, the court could limit him in the inquiry into that character.

Major Bacon: "You will please remember that the observations of the court only applied to the form of the question."

"That, sir, is exactly to what I am trying to apply my remarks. If I am not doing so, then I fail to comprehend the workings of my own brain."

Judge Speer: "The court had no anticipa-Judge Speer: The court had no anticipation of provoking this lengthy argument. It simply questioned the legality of the form of investigation. The court simply thought it was a pregnant question, and still thinks so. There must be a limit to that inquiry. When the good character of the defendant is proven that is all that is sufficient. The court, therefore holds that it is not present the resistance. fore, holds that it is not necessary to go into

SOMETHING OF AN EXCITEMENT.

Just at this juncture a little excitement took place, caused by an accident to Major Bacon upon his resuming his seat. Upon taking his seat his chair broke down and precipitated the gentleman to the floor.

"That is the third time, your honor, that I have met with the same fate in this chair. I can't understand for what reason it is placed here," said Major Bacon, somewhat heatedly.

"It was certainly not done purposely, sir," spoke back Marshal Cobrett with equal force from the other side of the room.

"Order in court," said Judge Speer.

"I would suggest that the gentleman apply to the representative from its district for relief. I have, long had a bad opinion of the farniture of this courtroom."

The affair passed off without more words. SOMETHING OF A FIGHTER, BUT NOT BAD. Resuming the investigation, Mr. Erwin asked the witness if he was in any way related to any of the defendants. He was not. He knew nothing of any meeting held at Mt. Zion church. He heard of no resolutions passed at any such meeting. He knew Wright Lancaster to be a man who would fight if necessary. He had heard of him being engaged in fights.

Major Bacon then took hold of the witness, but stopped to again get instructions from the court see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in which he was to recover see the header in the recover see the he

PRAISED BY THE SOLICITOR GENERAL.

Mr. Tom Eason, solicitor general of the Oconee circuit, was next put on the stand.

He said he lived in Telfair county near Burch's. He had never been to Burch's house.

He had lived in Telfair ten years. He knew Wright Lancaster. Had known him since going to Telfair. He knew the general character of Wright Lancaster. He had never known of Lancaster living anywhere else than in Telfair. His general knowledge in Telfair. His general knowledge of Lancaster's character led him to say he was a man of good character. Mr. Bacon again stopped to inquire if he was to understand that he would not be allowed to prove that his client was a member of the church.

The witness was here shown a bond, and asked if he knew the men whose names were attached to it. He knew all the men. He was then asked the character of the men whose names were there as securities.

Mr. Erwin here interposed an objection
Mr. Bacon stated that the evident purpose of it was to show that Wright Lancaster is the bondsman of Charles Clemens. was to show bondsman of Charles Clemens, was to show that they were intimate, and that after Clem-ens was known to him to be an alleged thief, ens was known to him to be an alleged thief, he thought it was their privilege to show that there were twenty odd other names on that bond, who were men of as good character as any, in the county, men who could in no way be convicted of crime.

Mr. Erwin replied by saying that the purport of the bond introduced by the prosecution was simply to show that, as an officer of the law, with a knowledge of the guilt of Clemens, was so connected with him as to throw around them a train of circumstances that was a valuable illustration. He did not hold the mere fact of Lancaster having signed the mere fact of Lancaster having signed the bond was a matter of importance.

Judge Speer ruled that it was competent for the defense to show that there were other names of good character on the bond. names of good character on the bond.

Continuing, the witness said the majority

THE ATLANTA POOR.

Quiet and Contented Way.

The poor of Atlar, ta are better cared for perhaps, than those of any city in the south.

Warden Hunt et says that there is not a case of absolute want and destitution, so far as has come under his observation, and he is the soul of vigilant viatchfulness in the whole city of Atlanta.

Atlanta.

This is, a remarkably gatifying stafe of affairs.

While there are some, perhaps many, who are in need of a great many things, will they all had a Christmas dinner, and through the liberality of the citizens, the warden had a pretty good shitle pile of presents to distribute among them. Still, if the weather turns very cold, as it bids fair to de, the poor will need help and protection, and the charitable-hearted people of the city should not lose sight of them.

A Joyous Occasion—W. D. Luckie Lodge Enjoys a Splendid Festival.

Never were Masons happier than those of West End last night. The occasion was the installation of officers, which, together with a delightful and varied musical programme, made an occasion long to be remembered by sil who participated. West End lodge presented a beautiful scene which will neveribe forgotten by all who were present. Indeed it was very much like "Ye olden times."

"When music arose with its voluptuous swell,
And all went merry as a marriace belt."

A large number of Masons, their wives, daughters and invited guests gathered at an early hour and the officers-elect, being preceded with beautiful strains of music, were duly installed by Pastmaster Shropshire, of Atlanta. The regular meeting of the Atlanta branch of the Southern Travelers' Association will be held in their elegant rooms at the old capitol It is proposed to make this occasion the be-ginning of a new year and to celebrate the event by holding a grand reception. Primo solo, "Minuet," Padereski, Miss Lelia Hanbury.

Vocal solo, selected, Miss Julia Manning.
The openingsumber, vocal duet, by Miss Castleberry and Mr. Ferris was rendered with much taste, and was greatly admired.
The flute solo, by Mr. Hanbury, was a pretty composition rendered in a highly artistic manner. Miss Castleberry's solo, "Proposal," by Streleski, was sung charmingly. It was greatly enjoyed, as was shown by the applause that followed. Miss Castleberry is one of Atlanta's sweetest vocalists, and she never sung to better advantage than on this occasion.

Miss Manning's solo was enthusiastically received and this little lady scored her usual success.
Miss Lella Hanbury's solos were both gems of the highest order, and it is impossible to say which number was most heartily received by the large audience present.

After the programme was through, the members and their guests repaired to the banquet hall where the tables groaned with good things, where much enjoyment was had until a lute hour. It may be safely said that never was such music, such soft bewitching chords, such desigeful songs delivered before in a Masonic hall.

A touching incident, not laid down on the programme, was the unexpected presentation of a beautiful basket of choice flowers to Miss Hanbury. The presentation was made by Mr. J. R. Gray in a neat and appropriate spee ch, which was happily and gracefully received by the fair recipient. As this incident occurred the fair musician never looked to better advantage or more fully deserved a more choice array of beau tiful flowers Whereas, The beginning of the fiscal year of the Atlanta branch commences on May 5th, and the next annual convention of the Southern Travelers' Association will be held on Monday, May 4, 1891, and to be prepared to meet our annual dues to the general association, thirty days prior to said convention as prescribed by the constitution and bylaws; therefore, be it Resolved. That we amend the constitution and bylaws of the Atlanta branch and commence our iscal year on January, 1, 1891, providing for the payment of dues from that date. Further Resolved, That all members in good standing, shaft have their account credited with the sum of 5t, that amount being paid from January to May. The proposed amendment has been thoroughly discussed, and the prevailing opinion among prominent members is, that in case never looked to better advantage or more full deserved a more choice array of beau tiful flower Henshaw's many Atlanta friends gave him an enthusiastic reception, and he won their smiles. His song "On the Bridge," was clever and was the his of the evening. His partner worked equally swell. The contortionist was good.

"The Nabobs" is one of those plays which cater to the gallery audience and was greeted with riotous merriment and howls of applause. The costumes were quite pretty.

It amuses. The plot is of an intangible kind, and burlesque prevails. Mr. John E. Henshaw did some work that was decidedly superior to that of anyone else in the company. He has a comic way with him, and a ready smile that wins for him the sympathy of the audience. The dancing of the six school-girls was one of the best features of the performance, and some of the musical selections pleased the audience much.

KILLED AT EAST POINT.

NEGRO SHOOTS AND INSTANTLY

Coleman, the White Man, and Rufus Johnson, the Negro-A Posse After Johnson, Who Escaped.

A cowardly murder. East Point was the scene of an exciting tragedy yesterday about 6 o'clock. A negro man shot and instantly killed a well-known white citizen of that place.

John Coleman was the man killed, and Rufus Johnson the negro who did the killing. Johnson is still at large. The town marshal and a posse are scouring the country for him, and if he is overtaken and brought back to the scene of tragedy he may be summarily dealt

News of the killing reached the city soon after it occurred, the police being notified and instructed to look out for the negro who fired From what could be gathered from those who were near when the shooting took place, it seems that it was deliberate, cold-blooded In substance, the details are as follows:

A crowd was gathered in a store opposite the depot, passing the time as loungers in a country store usually do, in talking and jok-

There were several negroes in the crowd as well as white men. Johnson, the negro who did the killing, was smoking. Coleman asked him for a light, and then some words followed, but nobody thought there was anything serious brew-Shortly after this Mr. Coleman got up and started out of the store. When he got near the door, Johnson, the negro, quickly pulled a pistol out of his pocket. and before anyone realized what he was about to do, fired at Mr. Coleman.

The ball entered his side, and he died in a few moments. After he fired the shot Johnson sprang over the prostrate body of Mr. Coleman and ran into

The killing created a great deal of excite ment, and if the negro had been in reach he would in all probability have been lynched. As soon as information could be communicated to the marshal, he organized a posse and started in pursuit of the negro.

Beyond the few words that passed between Mr. Coleman and the Johnson negro in the store, as far as is known, there was no difficulty between them. Mr. Coleman was a young man and was well liked by everybody who knew him. Dr. J. C. Avary, the coroner, was notified of the killing and an inquest will be held The people of East Point are very much excited over the tragedy. Use Pond's Extract for earache, face-ache and neuralgic pains, Wonderfui relief.

But there's nothing ahead of it. The reputation of Pearline covers a multitude of imitations. Their names may end in "ine," but their use may end in trouble. Don't be persuaded that they are "the same as Pearline," or "as good as Pearline." The peddlers who try to sell them will tell you that they are; if you're reckless enough to try them, you will know that they are not. Get your Pearline of some good grocer, for it's never pedtiled. ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 27, 1890. Atlanta Weather.

It is clear that the signal service must go out of business, or stop predicting weather for Atlanta. For years there has been an effort on the part of the bureau to ignore the originality of the climate of Atlanta and to give this town the weather that is dished out to other places.

We need not say that this effort has been a failure. All of our citizens have seen the storm signals fluttering during a period of the most peaceful weather, and they have beheld the cold wave flag toyed with by breezes as balmy as those which mark th advent of spring.

What our citizens have seen has not been concealed from the eyes of the signal service bureau, and yet the observers persist in their efforts to retain Atlanta on their war maps. For Christmas morning a temperature next to freezing was selected for Atlanta, but we would have none of it. The cold wave either went elsewhere, or warmed itself up to suit the exigencies of Christmas.

It is true that we have weather, but it is Atlanta weather, and our advice to the signal service bureau is to wait and see wha kind of weather is popular here each day, and then make the announcement.

The Asheville Convention. The recent interstate immigration conven tion at Asheville, N. C., has had a marked effect upon the country and has given the south and southern interests generally a wide advertisement-one that is likely to prove beneficial in the future.

The work of the convention is variously commented on, especially in the west, where It has set the people to thinking on the subject of immigration and has directed their attention to the south as a desirable locality But some of the western newspapers are un necessarily alarmed over the work of the convention, and they do not clearly under-

As a matter of fact, many western farmers are leaving that section and traveling south ward. This is notably the case in Kansas, where the farmers have suffered from short crops and find it impossible to pay their debts and make a living. Hence, the news papers are alarmed and are warning the people not to move south.

The Omaha Daily Bee commends the work of the Asheville convention in these words: "The recent interstate immigration convention at Asheville, N. C., is an object lesson that should not be lost upon the west. When the south assembles such a representation of its interests and throws its doors wide open to homeseekers and manufacturers from the northwest,' it is time for the people of this section to be actively at work in the same direction." But our contemporary declares that, commendable as such movement is, there are reasons why it may not be expected to achieve great results, and these reasons are set forth as

In the first place, the south has been very heavily boomed in the last few years. Magic cities have sprung up at the junctions of paper railroads, and innumerable Pittsburgs have been founded at sands of town lots have been unloaded upon credu lous northern investors, who, as inevitable col have occurred, have bec tongues to decry the south. It will take ne to outlive the results of this reckless boom

There is another obstacle in the way of souther immigration that bids fair to last even longer.
This is the fact that northern men have yet to be that they are truly welcome in the south, as they are in the west, Let no one be deceived by such statements.

"Thousands of town lots in the south" may have passed into the hands of porthern investors, but not one of them has decried the south in consequence. On the contrary, they have reaped large profits from their in vestments and are generally well pleased with the south: and as to "reckless booming," for every boom that the south has had substantial results can be shown.

Northern men are welcomed in the south, and when they come it is generally to stay. They are satisfied with the country and eager to invest in its enterprises. So that the cry of these western newspapers amounts to nothing more than a vain effort to restrict Immigration. They are frightened by the threatened depopulation of the west and are striving to build up their country at the expense of the south. They cannot do this owever, by misrepresentation and it is not fair that they should resort to it.

The Irish Situation.

It is to be observed that the comments of the newspapers on the Parnell episode and its results are becoming rarer and rarer. This is natural. The whole matter has passed beyond the point where newspaper comment could be useful or informing. The situation is its own best commentary. [Nothing the newspapers could say would add to the knowledge of the public or have any influence on the course of events.

And yet, it is not to be denied that the situation is suggestive. It carries with it a moral and an example that ought to be diligently studied by those who have a cause to aphold or to destroy. It makes no differce whether one is biased in favor of Parnell or against him: the moral and the example stick out, and ought to be as plain in one case as in the other.

It must be clear, even to the most blinded friend or opponent of Parnell that the Irish cause, which has not the remotest connection with the matter, has been needlessly made the victim of an unhappy combination of circumstances, which could easily have been averted if patriotism and not personalism had been paramount in the minds of the Irish leader and his friends. Perhaps it is unnecessary to say even this much for the nage has been done, and it seems to be well-nigh irreparable. The cause of home rule has received a set-back from which it will not fully recover for a generation to come, unless all the signs are awry-and the blow fell just at the moment when the Irish cause seemed to be on the point of winning an important and permanent victory.

There is no doubt in our minds that the tory leaders laid a trap for Mr. Parnell in the O'Shea matter and that he walked into it blindly. We have no doubt that to accomplish all that has been accomplished, British gold has been freely used. This is a convenient commodity, and there is never any lack of it whenever the representatives of the British aristocracy need it to carry a point.

Having walked into the trap, what was Mr. Parnell's duty as a patriot-as a leader of a cause that was waiting on the verge of victory? He has won a reputation for statesmanship and self-abnegation that is second to that of no political leader, and he must have seen what the result was to be. He must have known that the British tories, caring nothing for his personality, were trying to strike down the Irish cause through him. Under the circumstances, what was his duty? It was a question whether he or the cause which he represented should be sacrificed. There have been occasions when he would gladly have sacrificed himself in order to save the cause of home rule; but in this juncture he was not equal to the demands that were made on him. To the surprise of those who are familiar with his career, he has insisted on dentifying his own personality with the Irish cause, and the result is-hopeless confusion and division. The game the tories have been playing a deep one, and they have won it. Irish party seems to be hopelessly divided. The leaders and their followers are fighting among themselves. The issue is no longer the winning one of home rule, but Parnell or anti-Parnell. Therefore the British opponents of home rule can afford to draw ong breath of relief. The Irish cause has been smashed in the house of its friends. The wrangling that has been begun in Ireland is another wound to the enemies of British oppression, and the outlook is not a happy one. Parnell, the cool-headed, conservative, self-contained, unselfish patriot and statesman seems to have perished from the face of the earth, and in his place we have the eager, passionate, wrangling, petulant figure of the Parnell who is the victim of tory chicanery. The moral of it all is that a cause which has a vital principle behind it is greater than any man. As the cause of liberty was greater than Washington, or than any man who has ever espoused it, so the Irish cause is greater than Parnell. There seems to e some confusion on this point in Ireland, and for the present the campaign of personalism seems to be paramount. The cause of home rule will be injured for a while, but the justice that lies behind it will sustain it to the end. Personalism invariably has a very short race to run.

A Good Man Gone.

The death of Colonel George T. G. White, the southern manager of the Equitable Life Insurance Company in New York, will be deeply regretted by a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Colonel White was a native of Savannah and for a long time was a resident of Georgia. After the war he accepted the management of the Equitable company's south ern interests, and it was largely on account of his presentation of the facts of the situation that the northern life insurance companies were induced to extend their business and their investments in the south. From first to last he had the welfare of his native section at heart, but he was so broad-minded, magnetic and lovable that he soon becam one of the most popular men in New York.

Always public-spirited and liberal, Colonel White generously responded to every legitimate call that was made upon his sympathies and his purse. He was among the first to subscribe $1,000 to the Georgia Confederate Home, and among the first to subscribe to the Grady hospital, and to the Grady monument fund, and to other deserving objects in Atlanta, and elsewhere in the south. He was a man of culture, with a big brain and a big heart, and the many who knew and loved him will fee! that his death is a personal bereavement.

Mr. Porter and the South.

The life of a census supervisor is not a happy one. For the past three months Mr. Porter has been the most widely advertised man in the United States, and since he has made his official report the newspapers have been busier than eyer with his name.

The trouble with Mr. Porter now is that. in order to protect his own census from suspicion, he is attacking all former efforts in that line, particularly the census of 1870, which he declares was hasty and superficial. He says that in the southern states the census of 1870 was grossly defective, and that these states deserved at that time a much larger population than was given them in the official report of that year.

It is well enough that Mr. Porter should say a good word for the south, but he certainly deserves the charge of The Philadelphia Record, which is that he "is a stranger to the country's history," for in order to bolster up his attack on the census of 1870 he declares that South Carolina, Louisiana and other southern states "suffered little from the ravages of war," and that their population was not materially affected by the war. In regard to this statement The Philadelphia Record says:

Mr. Porter appears to be wholly unaware that a Mr. Forter appears to be whonly unaware that a a large portion of South Carolina was almost completely stripped of its inhabitants, white and black, during the civil war. He probably never heard of General Sherman's march through the Carolinas and of its effects upon population. Nor does he seem to have any knowledge of the period of restruction, that carried he carried have construction—that carnival of carpet-bag cor-ruption and oppression—which was more fatal to the growth of population than the war itself, and from which South Carolina and Louisiana were the greatest sufferers. To anyone familiar with the country's history it was a matter of gratified surprise that these states should have hown a larger population in 1870 than in 1880 fter four years of civil war, followed by six after four years of civil war, followed by six years of carpet-bag spoliation and misrule. The fact constitutes a striking evidence of the general accuracy of the census of 1870.

Mr. Porter should read up on the country's history. He proves that he is wofully ignorant of the south and southern affairs he says that the south suffered but little from the ravages of the war, and particularly South Carolina, which he mentions in proof of his assertion. He is misrepresenting history when he makes such reckless statements-or rather, he is making history to order. Mr. Porter evidently desires to "stand in" with the south , but he cannot do it in that way. Neither can he prove the accuracy of his own census by attacking every preceding census. If he had desired to do any work for the south he could have done it when his enumerators were abroad. He is not a very popular man in some southern states, whose population has been indifferently reported in the interest of a republican administration.

MR. HARRISON'S political sock was found to be empty on Christmas morning. There was a hole in the heel and one in the toe.

THE NEW YORK correspondent of The Philadelphia Bulletin says there is no need of going west or south to find a rough neighborhood. All one has to do is to travel on the horse cars as far as they will carry one up in the northern portion of Hudson county, New Jersey. Then let him or her take a walk straight out in any direction. The pages are of foolscap size are closely written in a small hand, and the erasures, interlineations and marginal refer-ences make some of the pages seem almost like puzzles. But they show how much labor and thought Dickens put into his work; how he rewrote and polished his sentences, toning down too violent a contrast here and heightening too quiet a passage there. They show the sincerity nesty of the man, and they are encouragin to those who write and who try to write grad fully, yet who find careful composition laborious It is really satisfactory to know that even some of the authors of great reputation had to work for what they achieved-that their power was no entirely "born in them."

THE AUGUSTA CHRONICLE has been defending General Gordon for joining the alliance, and giv-ing the reasons why he ought to join. But General Gordon has not joined the alliance so far. He has filed his application to join, it has been acted on favorably, and three different times have been appointed for him to be initiated, but he has not presented himself. It is said now by some of his friends that he is hesitating; that he has rece some strong appeals from some of his stron supporters not to "stultify" himself such a course, as they term it, and that he has about abandoned the idea On the other hand several alliance members of the legislature who voted for him say he must join to help hold up their hands. W. AND A. TRANSFER.

THIS IS THE LAST DAY OF THE

Which Expires at 12 O'clock Tonight-The Arrangements to Be Made This Afternoon

This is the last day the State road will be operated by the old lessee company.

The twenty-years lease of 1870 expires 12 o'clock, midnight, tonight, And unless something wholly unforseen just now should happen, the new lease goes into effect at midnight. Today it is President Joseph E. Brown. Tomorrow, President John W. Thomas.

The final arrangements for the transfer are to be made today, probably this afternoon. No Developments Yesterday.

"No," said Governor Northen yesterday vening, "nothing has been done in the matter today, so far as I am concerned.

"All that is necessary to be done, I suppose will be done tomorrow afternoon.

"There is no indication but that the transfer will take place very quietly, everything ac cording to programme, without hitch or embar assment of any sort."

A Simple Programme.

First, Senator Brown is expected to com unicate with Governor Northen, arranging for the transfer of the property to the state a xactly 12 o'clock. Then Governor Northen will communicate with Colonel Thomas, arranging for the transfer from the state to the new lease company at exactly 12 o'clock tonight. Both these arrangements made, the official proceedings are at an end.

Will Arrive Today. NASHVILLE, Tenn. December 26.—[Special.] President John W. Thomas, Assistant General Manager J. W. Hon. Clark Howell. From The Augusta Chronicle.

Hon. Clark Howell, speaker of the house of presentatives in Georgia, spent Christmas in Augusta. His friends greeted him with enthusiasm. He has made a splendid record by his management of the house, his decisions having been prompt and clear and his demeanor firm but courteous. He displayed rare tact in his selection of committees and altogether his course was one to be proud of. Mr. Howell thinks the legislature which meets in July will be in session about sixty days. The Christma number of "Dixie" has an excellent photograph of Clark Howell, and adds a brief and breezy sketch. He is the youngest managing editor of great paper in America. He received his training on The New York Times and The Philadelphia Press. His first position on THE Constitution was that of night editor. Later Mr. Grady appointed him assistant managing editor. After Mr. Grady's death, Mr. Howell was made managing editor. His associates de clare that he is a splendid newspaper man, posses great tact, and good, sound judgment. The most striking and impressive piece of work he has done was his inierview with Samuel J. Tilden, printed broadcast over the country, which definitely settled Tilden's canlidacy in 1884. Mr. Howell is a solid and sensible young man. No man has more friends in Georgia. We believe he is the youngest

The gifted young speaker of the house of representatives has certainly won his spurs at an early age in life. Veteran legislators, who have served under the best nariangement, and the best nariangement of the less than the property of the less t age in life. Veteran legislators, who have served under the best parliamentarians in our state, say that Speaker Howell has never been surpassed as a presiding officer, and has few equals. Several times the house apparently got into a tangle, but under the fair and skilful guidance of Mr. Howell they were carried as smoothly and gracefully on as an experienced mariner would steer his vessel through the break ers. His rulings are so plain and just that the members follow him with confidence and trust. Not only is Clark Howell a model presiding officer, but by his courteous and gentlemanly de-portment and genial manners, he makes a warm and lasting friend of every one with whom he comes in contact. The future of this young mar is bright indeed, for he is destined to fill in the hearts of the people of Georgia the place made hearts of the people of Georgia the place mad vacant by the death of the lamented Grady Clark Howell is as true to his friends, his prin ciples, his convictions, his party and his people as the needle to the pole. The apron was made to represent Louisiana, and very ingenjously combined six products of the state. The body of the apron was of raw cotton batting, with a bunch of sugar cane painted in the left corner, while in the right corner, rice, glued to the apron, appeared to be tumbling from a pocket made of the red flowering leaf of the banana tree. Moss outlined the left edge, and orange peel, cut diamond shape, was sewed about the bottom and up the right side. A belt, plaited of latanis, completed this really artistic and unique specimen of the handiwork of two New Orleans laddes.

TOPICS OF TODAY.

Every married man will doubtless develop into an enthusiastic advocate of Captai Seay's bill, providing for the taxation bachelors—and so will every unmarried woman. Of what use are bachelors? Car anybody answer that? Not much; they themselves will agree to that. Which being the case, they should not object to being made to provide revenue for the communities in which they reside. Henry George's ideas of taxa-tion apply with force here. He believes that uncultivated and unproductive land should be taxed higher in pro-

A law like that proposed by Captain Seay would knock this can't-affordto-get-married foolishness in the head, and would make bachelorhood the luxny instead of the married state. I find in a Louisville paper a reference to the warm friendship that existed between the late Bishop Beckwith and Edwin Booth. Theirs, says the writer, was a life-long friendship, which even the great difference in their lives could not weaken. They were at college to-gether and afterward studied elocution from the same master. On account of this was the that the bishop was a disciple of the great actor. On one occasion, it is said, Bishop Beckwith was in New York city at a time when Mr. Booth was there. They had not seen each other since their school days. "The beverage of the popes," is the term used of Roman punch, and the name has been earned. The story goes that this delicious drink had been the summer refreshment of successive popes for over eighty years, and their chefs were threatened will kinds of horrors and punishments if they ever divulged the secret of its preparation. When Napoleon invaded Italy in 1796 this terrible interdict was broken through. Here is the recipe as I found it in The American Analyst:

"Prepare a very rich pineapple or sherbert; have it a little tart with lemon juice, taking the greatest care that none of the oil from the yellow rind, or the bitterness from the white underlying pith, be allowed to enter into the composition of this sherbert. In order to be certain of this it is better, first, to grate off the yellow rind from the lemons, then to carefully remove all the white pith, and, 'to make assurance doubly sure,' wash the skinned fruit in pure water; after which press out the juice free from the rind of the fruit; strain the juice so as to remove all the seeds or pips from it; then add it to the pineapple mixture. It must be then very well frozen. This sherbert, being very rich, will not freeze hard, but will be semi-ice. Just before the punch is to be served, add and work into it for every quart of the ice one gill of Jamaica and for every two quarts one pint of the best champagne. Never use the wine from damaged bottles or leaky corks, as it will be sure to deprave, and perhaps entirely spoil your punch. After you have well incorporated these liquors, add cream or meringue-mixture to suit."

There wasn't much in the Christmas shopping to indicate a tightness in the money market. Merchants in all branches agree that the sales this year have exceeded those of any previous year.

Speaking of money stringencies, a banker said: "I think we talk about them entirely too much. I stopped a wealthy gentleman who lives outside of Atlanta, and asked him for his opinion of the troubles. 'Troubles?' he he said. 'Troubles?' why, I haven't heard of any trouble.' All of which shows that talking about these matters tends to spread the alarm and doesn't do any good."

He may be right.

The South Wins. The South Wins.

From The Richmond State.

The prominent scientific gentlemen of England and Germany who visited America last fall as the guests of the American Iron and Steel institute have returned home, and speak with special enthusiasm on two subjects: the mineral riches of the south and the beauty of southern women.

They were wonderstruck. The mountains of mineral riches of the south and the beauty of southern women. They were wonderstruck. The mountains of miner als were a revelation to them. They came with vague ideas of Pennsylvania mining regions, but they left with their minds crammed with knowl-edge of the south. There is no doubt that they will make Virginia's mineral resources known to Europe, and that their visit will result in millions of dollars invested here. These visitors were, by every possible device, kept away from the south, just as the Pan-Americans were, but some of then gave the republican protectionists the slip and reached Virginia—thus showing that truth is mighty and will prevail.

CREATES UNIVERSAL SORBOW ALL THROUGH THE SOUTH.

Short Glance at the Life of a Truly Representative Southern Gentleman.

ement of the death on Christ The announcement of the death on Christ-mas Day of Colonel George T. G. White at Brooklyn, N. Y., has created universal sorrow throughout the south, and especially in At-lanta, where he had a wide circle of devoted friends.

Colonel White was a native of Savanna and was the son of the Rev. George White, or Savannah, an Episcopalian minister celebrated as the author of a valuable contribution to state history entitled "Statistics of Georgia. The reverend gentleman died about two years ago in Memphis, at the age of eighty years. Colonel White went to New York city in '51 or '52 as the representative of Stone, Starr & Co., merchants of Savannsh, remaining there in that capacity until the breaking out of the civil war, when he came south. He followed a general trading business during the war, making Marietta his headquarters.

making Marietta his headquarters.

At the war's conclusion he immediately returned to New York, entering the employ of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, one of he most powerful and reliable organizations of its kind in this country.

About the year '65 he married a Miss Wagper daughter of the well-known confectioner Two children were born them, Dr. George W. a practicing physician in Brooklyn, and Miss Nora, who resides with her mother in the same city.

Through persistent diligence and strict integrity he gradually rese, step by step, in the Equitable company, until in 1878 he was appointed to full charge of the southern depart ment of that concern. It was a great stroke when the appointment was made, as the colo nel built up for his company a magnificen southern business, which he leaves as a monu ment to his skill, enterprise and shrewd fore

The deceased gentleman was one of the most kindly hearted and charitable men that ever lived. He contributed $8,000 for the relief of the yellow fever sufferers at Jacksonville, Fla., two years ago and $1,000 to the New Orleans flood sufferers last spring. He was the first contributor to the Confederate Veterans' Home fund, his gift of $1,000 having been handed in the same morning Mr. Grady's celebrated editorial appeared in The Constitution. He also gave $250 to the hospital and $100 to the monument fund. His private benefactions were numerous, and many a needy but deserving person has reason to bless his memory for substantial help and encouragement received at his hands.

Colonel White was extremely fond of social pleasures, and his kindly, cultured manner won for him hundreds of friends among both sexes. He was especially fond of the society of young people, and was always giving theater, dancing, suppers, card par-ties, etc. There is scarcely a young lady or gentleman in Atlanta but who has been made to look at the world through rose-tinted spectacles, through the natural, whole-souled man ner and lavish hospitality of this deceased

Every year he has made three or four trips

Every year he has made three or four trips through the south. Four weeks ago he stood in the presence of his Atlanta friends. Little did they suspect the near presence of death to the man whose genial presence and splendid character had endeared him to all alike.

Colonel White was a great friend to the south in every way. Last winter he brought Mr. Hyde, president of the Equitable company, and General Fitzgerald, president of the Mercantile Trust Company, of New York, on a trip through the south as faras New Orleans. As a result of that trip Mr. Hyde was so favorably impressed with Atlanta that he consented to erect a handsome building here. This was a pet scheme of Colonel White's, and its culmination is due to his energy and prudent management. Its construction will be commenced some time in January, and when completed it will be the handsomest building in the south.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, December 26.—It becomes more evilent from day to day that brokers, investors and speculators are determined to wait until the railroads and other institutions have finished paying their annual and semi-annual disbursements, and also until the last road has signed the president's agreement, and business in Wall street is, therefore, brought almost to a standatil and in most instances stocks are merely ness in Wall street is, therefore, brought almost to a stundstill, and in most instances stocks are merely nominal, and will, in all probability, remain so until the first of the year, at least. Today, as usual upon the day after Christmas, the market was extremely dull, though its record of transactions fairly surpassed those of Wednesday. This was entirely owing to the increased interest in individuals displayed and bear attacks on the Union Pacific and Atchison, and in the ast named two stocks almost aligo the features in the market were concentrated. Considering the pressure by bears upon these two stocks and others, the general list displayed a fairly strong undertone. Bears have list displayed a fairly strong undertone. Bears have held points out to sell Union Pacific for some time, and today they proceeded to make these points good, and while there was suspicion that some long stock was coming out, there was an order to buy about 5,000 shares executed; until after which time there was little progress made in a downward direction. Later, however, it was depressed to 100, and the same time weekers, it was depressed to 100, and the same time weekers evening was depressed to 100, and the same time was forced as the same time was a fact that roads had carned 9 per cent for the year, and the declaration of a regular dividend, imparted some strength, while the lead trust resumed its upward movement on the prospect of a dividend, and rose to 18, but afterwards reacted. Vanderbits were still strong, but failed to nake any material movement. St. Paul and Rock island were rather heavy throughout, but lost only alight fractions with the remainder of the list, and late in the day there was a covering movement on the part of the trading element, which had the effect of causing a partial recovery of early losses. The close was dull but firm, though generally at something under the final prices of Wednesday. Atchison is down 11s, Tennessee, coal, 754, and Union Pacific, 155.

The Battle of Life.

The true here will endeaver to make the most of life, and to this end the first consideration is a robust constitution. Like a good general on the battle plain, who, when expecting an attack from the enemy, will entrench himself in fortifications, so he, when disease is in the atmosphere or hovering in ambush amid climatic changes, will fortify his system against every encroachment the grim monster may seek to make. Many a grand life has ended for want of timely precaution in the hour of need. When fever and influenza are abroad, when the damp chilly days touch the marrow bones, when effluvia and malaria, walk hand in hand, then it is that the system should be fortified by a use of that tuperb strengthen. be fortified by a use of that the system smold be fortified by a use of that tuperb strengthen-ing tonic alterative of Dr. John Bull's Sarsa-parilla, which keeps the blood pure and the functions regulated, so that disease cannot enter the citadel of life.

Wonders

Are wrought by the use of Ayer's Hair. Vigor in restoring gray hair to its original color, promoting a new growth, preventing the hair from falling, keeping it soft, silky, and abundant, and the scalp cool, healthy, and free from dandruff or humors. The universal testimony is that this preparation has no equal as a dressing, and is, therefore, indispensable to every well-furnished toilet.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for ser time and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and was rapidly coming bald; but since using the Vigor and is perfectly clear of dandruff, the h has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recomwas a young woman. I can heartily recom-mend any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair to use Ayer's Hair Vigor as a dressing." – Mrs. Lydia O. Moody, East Pittston, Me.

"Some time ago my wife's hair began to come out quite freely.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

not only prevented my wife from becoming bald, but it also caused an entirely new growth of hair. I am ready to certify to this statement before a justice of the peace."— H. Hulsebus, Lewisburgh, Iowa.

"Some years ago, after a severe attack of brain fever, my hair all came out. I used such preparations for restoring it as my phy-sicians ordered, but failed to produce a growth of hair. I then tried, successively, several articles recommended by druggists, and all alike fell short of accomptishing the desired result. The last remedy I applied was Ayer's Hair Vigor, which brought a growth of hair in a few weeks. I think I send circle hearth as the service of the service o used eight bottles in two years; more than was necessary as a restorative, but I liked it as a dressing, and have continued to use it for that purpose. I believe Ayer's Hair Vigor possesses virtues far above those of ilar preparation now on the market." -Vincent Jones, Richmond, Ind.
